The Genesis:

In 1954, the first President of India Late Sri.Rajendra Prasad laid a Foundation Stone for the buildings of this Institute. The Institution was started in the year 1954 as "Development Officers Training Centre" by the Government of India under the Ministry of Community Development and Cooperation to impart training to Block Development Officers of Community Development Blocks. In the year 1958-59, the Institute was renamed as "Orientation and Study Centre". In the year 1967 (from 1-4-1967), this Institute was transferred to the State Government. In the year 1970 the Institute was renamed as "State Institute of Community Development and Panchayat Raj". The institute's name was again changed as State Institute of Rural Development in 1983. This name was later changed as "Andhra Pradesh Academy of Rural Development" with effect from 26-5-1994. From 5-8-2002 onwards, this Academy has been called as "A. Madhava Reddy – Andhra Pradesh Academy of Rural Development" in commemoration of the then PR &RD Minister late Sri Alimineti Madhava Reddy.
